

PRINTABLE VERIFICATION CHEAT SHEET

How to Read Opex360 with Confidence

Looking for “OpenX360”? The established spelling is Opex360. Use this quick-reference guide to monitor French defense news, follow developments over time, and verify important claims.

Au sommaire

- 1 Opex360 at a glance
- 2 Before you trust a defense claim
- 3 Do not confuse these milestones
- 4 A practical Opex360 reading workflow

Opex360 at a glance

Opex360 is a French specialist publication associated with the Zone Militaire editorial identity.

International conflicts, alliances, and military developments are generally covered through their relevance to France or Europe.

“OpenX360” is a common search variant; use “Opex360” when searching for the publication or linking to an article.

Its core coverage includes French armed forces, operations, procurement, equipment, readiness, defense policy, and strategy.

Its strongest use is specialist monitoring and context—not replacing official or primary records.

Before you trust a defense claim

Record the article date

The date helps distinguish an initial report from a later update.

Identify the named institution, company, unit, or program

Use these details for precise follow-up searches.

Separate fact from attribution

Check whether the article reports a confirmed event, relays a statement, or offers analysis.

Look for the underlying public record

Check ministry, parliamentary, company, or other institutional documentation when available.

Search for later coverage

Look for funding, contract, delivery, training, deployment, delay, or cancellation milestones.

Compare perspectives

Use official records for verification and international outlets for broader context.

Do not confuse these milestones

Claim or milestone	What it establishes	What to verify next
Political intention	A stated direction or objective	Budget approval, legal decision, and implementation
Budget announcement	A planned or proposed allocation	Final appropriation and spending execution
Signed contract	A formal procurement or industrial commitment	Scope, options, delivery schedule, and cancellations
Delivery milestone	Transfer of equipment or a production stage	Training, acceptance, availability, and deployment

Claim or milestone	What it establishes	What to verify next
Operational report	An account of an event or activity	Attribution, independent confirmation, and later updates

A practical Opex360 reading workflow

1 Start with the current article

Note the headline, publication date, subject, and named actors before drawing a conclusion.

2 Classify the claim

Decide whether it concerns an intention, budget, contract, delivery, training, deployment, or operational event.

3 Trace the story backward and forward

Use categories, archives, tags, and internal links to find earlier announcements and later developments.

4 Verify the decisive details

Check the relevant official or primary source for money, legal status, contract terms, schedules, or capability claims.

5 Write a cautious conclusion

State what is confirmed, what is attributed, and what remains unresolved or subject to change.

DEFENSE NEWS: DIFFERENT SOURCES. A CLEARER PICTURE.

OPEX360 / OFFICIAL RECORDS / INTERNATIONAL OUTLETS

THREE PERSPECTIVES. ONE COMPLETE UNDERSTANDING.

Opex360

FRANCO-AMERICAN DEFENSE NEWS AND ANALYSIS

French defense reporting

In-depth coverage of French military news, policy and industry.

Program and operational context

Explains equipment, programs, capabilities and real-world deployment.

French-language specialist coverage

Access to analysis, interviews and perspectives from French defense experts and stakeholders.

OFFICIAL RECORDS

FACTS. DOCUMENTS. PRIMARY EVIDENCE.

Formal statements

Speeches, press releases and official communications from government and military institutions.

Budgets and contracts

Defense spending, procurement plans, industrial contracts and financial data.

Primary institutional evidence

Legislation, strategy documents, reports and official publications.

INTERNATIONAL OUTLETS

GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES. BROADER CONTEXT.

Global comparison

Shows how France's defense news fits into wider trends and developments around the world.

Alliance and industry context

Highlights NATO, European partners, industry dynamics and international cooperation.

Non-French perspectives

Brings different national viewpoints, expert analysis and alternative angles on the same story.

THE TAKEAWAY

Use Opex360 to follow the story, primary records to verify it, and international outlets to widen the frame.

INFOGRAPHIC Use Opex360 for specialist monitoring, official records for verification, and international outlets to widen the perspective.

! The most important caution

An announcement is not automatically a usable military capability. A political intention, signed contract, delivery, training milestone, and operational deployment are separate stages.

For important figures, contracts, budgets, schedules, and operational claims, consult the relevant official or primary record and check for later updates.